

Older Family Carers

People who look after older family members

Older family carers are people who are over 65 and care for a family member who has a learning disability.

Older family carers need more support to make sure the family can go on living together.

We wanted to make sure that families got the support that they needed.

We looked at what happens to people with learning disabilities when there is an emergency and we made a plan.

We wrote a report called Today and Tomorrow which we hope will help people think about what support they can get.

For more information please get in touch with:

Christine Towers

ctowers@learningdisabilities.org.uk foundation for people with learning disabilities